Council To Decorate Main Street For Christmas Season; May Use Town Truck To Move Ashes

Thirteen Applications Received For Fire Fighting Brigade; Seek New Lawyer To Replace D. G. MacKenzie Who Passed Away Last Week.

Regular meeting of the council was held on Monday evening. Present: Mayor Abousafy, Councillors Dutil, Lowe, Ramsay and Wilson.

Fire Chief William Antle reported on two fire practices held during the past few weeks. He stated that thirteen names had been received to date to join the Coleman fire fighting brigade and that the newcomers' enthusiasm for their new job was unbounded. He reported that the fire truck was badly in need of an overhaul and that the lights had to be improved. He was authorized to have a mechanic inspect the truck and make whatever repairs necessary.

Councillor Dutil reported on the fire siren. He stated that after consultation with Blairmore he found the siren which Coleman proposed to buy was cheaper than that owned by Blairmore although it was the same style siren. Certain suggestions had been given by a local electrician in regard to the siren and these had been forwarded to the War Assets Corporation in Montreal. Councillor Dutil was empowered by council to act as he saw fit once further information on the siren had been received from Montreal.

Mayor Abousafy reported on he and Councillor Lowe's visit to the War Assets Corporation representative at Calgary two weeks ago on the subject of a fire truck. The representative had been very courteous and had promised council consideration when the first fire truck was released. Correspondence was then presented from the Montreal office of the War Assets Corporation promising council first consideration when a fire truck became available. A copy of the Montreal letter is to be forwarded to the Calgary representative for his files.

Complaints are falling thick and fast upon the heads of the various councillors regarding ashes which have not been removed for some weeks. Especially in the main street district are ashes especially bad as they are overflowing from their containers. Works and Property committee and the Finance committee were authorized to interview Mr. Martland with the proposal to use the town truck to remove ashes for a limited period. It was understood that Mr. Martland expected the arrival of his truck at any day.

A by-law was given third reading authorizing the mayor and secretary to sign the agreement with the Coleman Light & Water Company extending said agreement up to and including June 30, 1946.

The mayor reported on the sudden death of the town's Light & Water solicitor, D. G. MacKenzie, who passed away at Calgary the latter part of last week. Council will seek information on other capable Calgary lawyers before entering into an agreement with one to handle its Light & Water business.

A complaint had been received at the last regular meeting from taximan Henry Claes against the operation of the Ferstay bus from Blairmore carrying passengers from Coleman to a dance west of Coleman. Council promised to relay the complaint to the Highways Department, Edmonton. A reply was received from the Department stating that Mr. Claes had no ground for complaint and that Mr. Ferstay had the right to charter his bus for the purpose of transporting passengers to the dance.

Expenses of the recently concluded Clothing Drive amounted to approximately $7.50. This amount will be paid by council who voted its pleasure at the magnificent job done in Coleman during the drive.

Mrs. N. Duputik, relief recipient, presented her annual list of clothing requirements. The case was placed in the hands of the Relief committee.

A report from the provincial laboratory on the latest water sample submitted revealed that Coleman's drinking water was now pure.

A request for a donation was received from the National Institute for the Blind. This was the second donation asked for this year, but due to the magnificent work of the Institute council moved that a $10 donation be granted.

LEGION DONATES $250 TO REHABILITATION COMMITTEE

True to its promise that it would cover dollar for dollar any donation made to the Coleman Reception and Rehabilitation Committee by the town council the Canadian Legion last week sent its cheque to the committee for $250. The council donated $250 two weeks ago.

It is expected that the Rehabilitation Committee will announce in the near future the sum which it desires to raise in order to finance some suitable gift which it proposes to present to each member of the armed services who belongs to Coleman. Serious thought is being given this question at the present time, but no definite decision has as yet been reached.

Donations to the fund are being received by Secretary Adam Wilson.

D. G. MACKENZIE, K.C., DIED LAST SATURDAY

Donald Gladstone MacKenzie, 64, prominent Calgary lawyer, died suddenly Saturday noon at Calgary.

His death came as a surprise and shock to the Coleman mayor and councillors, who had been in frequent contact with Mr. MacKenzie, as he was the town solicitor on Light & Water affairs.

Of interest to old time soccer followers, Mr. MacKenzie in his youth played for Hearts of Midlothian in the Scottish first division.

He graduated from the University of Edinburgh with the Scottish degree of W. S. (Writer to the Signet). In 1920 he moved from Macleod to Blairmore, where he was a member of the firm of Gillis and MacKenzie. About 16 years ago he took up practice in Calgary.

Impressive Remembrance Day Service Held On Sunday; Sponsored By Canadian Legion

Parade Led By Coleman Pipe Band; J. J. McIntyre Was Chairman; Rev. W. E. Brown Delivered The Main Address

Coleman branch of the Canadian Legion sponsored an impressive Remembrance Day service in which the local clergy and citizens took part on Sunday morning, Nov. 11.

Veterans of this and the First Great War "fell in" at the Legion Club building at 9:30 and led by Coleman pipe band under Pipe Major Jim Moore paraded through the main streets. The large majority of those parading were in uniform, the entire parade being smart and neat.

The service was conducted in the Community hall, J. J. McIntyre being chairman, with the local clergy taking part in the program. A choir led by Mr. Jim Cousins and including members of Coleman CGIT under the leadership of Mrs. G. A. Kettlys, and members of St. Alban's and St. Paul's choirs. Miss Isabel Ewing, of the CGIT, presided at the piano. On the forefront of the stage was a bronze plaque upon which was inscribed the names of those men who had fallen in the First Great War.

In his opening remarks, Chairman McIntyre stated that we again had peace for the first time in six years. During the past six years Remembrance services were held under the stress and apprehension of terrible war.

Following the First Great War the annual anniversary of the signing of the Armistice on Nov. 11, 1918, was set as a day of remembrance for the glorious dead who had given their lives that we might live ours in a manner of our own choosing.

For about twenty years, he stated, we carried on blindly, apparently not heeding what was going on in other countries, not concerned that a monster was developing that would soon bring about terrorism never before known to the world. He told of Canada's great natural resources, wealth and vitality, of Canadians' capacity to produce and to build. He stated that Canada's production of implements of war in all its branches and contributions of so many needs to other countries surprised the world and also ourselves.

War not being won by materials alone saw our manhood and womanhood again called to face the rigors and terrors of war, many giving their lives that we might live in security.

"This day," he stated, "had now double significance than before. To remember the glorious dead of 1914-17 and 1939-45. He expressed sympathy to those who had lost loved ones in the recent war and stated "we pray for consolation for them in their grief. That the good Lord may lighten their sorrow."

The principal address was delivered by the Rev. W. E. Brown. He illustrated his address by drawing from the bible. He told of how at one time he had voiced his desire for water. Three of his warriors had volunteered to get water, the only available well being that held by the enemy. Their mission successful, David held the glass of water and remarked that this had been bought by the blood of men. So Remembrance Day was similarly bought by the blood of men.

He stated that we will remember all those who served, were maimed and those who died. "At the going down of the sun and in the morning we will remember them." "The souls of these men who died are in the hands of God."

He told of a captain on the high seas whose ship was torpedoed by a German submarine. The captain seriously wounded and lying on the bridge had ordered those who were able to get into the lifeboats. As the latter boats drew away and the ship was sinking fast the captain was seen to pull the whistle cord and three short and one long bursts were heard, a defiant answer to the Germans who sought to destroy a free people.

He expressed gratitude for national blessings and the vast resources of Canada. Canada had stood strong and firm during her stress of war and hope was high for the future.

He stated that these soldiers appeal to us and challenge us to commemorate their memory. He stated that the city of Ottawa was to be Returned Men And Women Given Royal Welcome Home At Banquet Concert And Dance On Monday

Sixty Two Returned Men And Women Present Along With Wives Or Parent; S. C. Short Was Program Chairman

More than two hundred men and women sat down to a sumptuous banquet on Monday evening to welcome home the men and women of Coleman who have only recently returned from overseas and points in the Dominion. There were approximately sixty-five members of the army, air force, navy, CWAC and RCAF (WD) present with their wives, mothers, fathers or sweethearts in addition to the Coleman Reception and Rehabilitation Committee, as well as several concert artists.

The stage was gaily decorated in red, white and blue bunting with flags of various Allied Nations standing conspicuously in front of the stage. The banquet tables were decorated with various bouquets and laden with food.

Prior to the banquet, Chairman Short called for thirty seconds silence in tribute to the memory of those boys who will not come home.

Following the banquet, Chairman Short voiced the thanks of those present to the entertainment committee and the ladies responsible for such a wonderful banquet. He stated that the citizens had looked forward to this evening for a long time. The men and women had gone to the war in ones and twos and had returned in practically the same manner. The citizens, he remarked, thrilled with pride to see them once again walking down the street. They had followed their progress from North Africa to Sicily, to Italy, up "the boot" till they were well inside Italy, and then across the Channel into France, Holland, Belgium and finally into Germany itself.

The discovery of the atom bomb made it now necessary to get away from this idea of force against force. We would now have to try and understand each other.

Mayor Abousafy officially welcomed the men and women home. He stated it was the most pleasurable assignment accorded him since he took office as mayor. The citizens, he stated, had looked forward to this evening, very probably with anxiety during the early years of the war. He welcomed them home with a full heart. They belonged to the great nation of Canada, which in two wars had made a name unsurpassed by any other nation. If Canada spent the same effort on herself in peacetime as she did in war she would become a leader of nations. The future is for Canada, stated Mayor Abousafy, as he concluded his "welcome back home boys."

Mr. J. J. McIntyre voiced his happiness at being present. He thanked the ladies who had worked so hard in the preparation and serving of such an enjoyable banquet. The ladies of Coleman, he stated, had made it an art in preparing for these functions. An art in which was involved a tremendous amount of work and sacrifice.

He remarked that there was a great deal of confusion at the end of the war and that the peoples of the Allied Nations had not yet adjusted themselves. The Coleman Reception and Rehabilitation Committee, he stated, had got away to a proper start, that of making Coleman's returned men and women happy. The people are now relaxed, no longer tense with fear of a telegram.

He described the tenseness of citizens waiting the arrival of a troop train carrying loved ones which they had not seen for years. He welcomed home Coleman's service personnel and stated everyone was glad and happy to have them back.

Chairman Short conducted a roll call of those armed personnel who were in attendance. Responding were Jim Anderson, Wm. Anderson, M. Atomenko, Jack Bell, Lewis Brown, George Burnik, George Booth, Vernon Brown, Lorry Caroe, Roach Cousins, Melville Cornett, Frank Cocciolone, Wilber Cox, Dan Daly, Ellis Derbyshire, George Derbyshire (MM), Walter Dibblee Jr., Neil Fleming, Dan Foster, Ross

The F.A.O. Conference

THE RECENT CONFERENCE of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations held in Quebec City, was of great interest to the people of Canada. Agriculture is one of our largest industries and any matter which concerns it, also concerns the interests of a very large part of the population here. The object of the Food and Agriculture Organization is to ensure freedom from want or hunger for all the people of the world, through raising the levels of production in agriculture, forestry and fishing, and at the same time organizing proper distribution on a world-wide basis. This is the first of the United Nations organizations to be set on a permanent footing and its success may have considerable bearing on the future of the wider fields of international co-operation which have been planned by the United Nations.

Surpluses To Be Distributed

One of the fundamental objects of the Organization is to raise nutrition levels in all countries, and to plan the distribution of food so as to avoid surpluses in one part of the world, when there are shortages elsewhere. In the past, we have too often seen great surpluses of Canadian wheat remaining unsold, while there were food shortages in other parts of the world. The situation has not applied to Canada alone, but has been experienced by many nations, and it has been detrimental both to the producers of the surplus products, and to the people who have been in need of them. It is hoped that in the future these conditions will be avoided, and it is clear that more equitable and efficient distribution would be an important step in building up international goodwill, and increasing the well-being and prosperity of individual nations.

Information To Be Furnished

While the work of the Food and Agriculture Organization is to be concerned with international problems, the needs and interests of individuals are also considered to be important. Information regarding advanced methods of farming, soil improvement programs, credit, co-operation and numerous other matters will be furnished to farmers. It is also proposed that representatives of the F.A.O. will keep the farmers' interests before individual governments in respect to marketing and other important matters. It was significant that Canada, as one of the world's greatest food-producing nations, was chosen as the meeting place for this conference, and that Canadian agricultural experts took a prominent part in all the discussions. It is now Canada's responsibility to do all that is possible to make a success of this first effort towards practical international co-operation growing out of the United Nations organizations. It is a difficult task, but one which may be a great benefit to the world.

Mounted Police Dog

Now Used Successfully In Tracking Down Criminals

A sleek, three-year-old Doberman-Pinscher named Prince tracks his man down and holds him just like the two-legged members of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The force's annual report cited Prince as a good example of the efficiency of the Mounties' police dog service.

In the 12 months ended March 31, 1945, Prince has helped on 79 cases, travelling 3,800 miles—mostly in the Maritimes.

He was taken to Port Hood, N.S., June 28, 1944, to help locate persons responsible for a series of burglaries. A stolen bike was finally located and Prince put on the track. He led the police to a camp where the remainder of the stolen goods was found.

Given the scent of a blanket, he immediately set out through the bush and soon located a man and held him by the pants leg until the police arrived.

Later he led police to a haystack where a second man was found sleeping. Both men were eventually convicted. Some of Prince's pals are "Ready," "Chips," "Rough," and "Smoky"—all good trackers—Ottawa Journal.

Price Control And Rationing Information

Q.—Will my husband be given canning sugar coupons, if he returns from overseas within the next few weeks?

A.—The preserves coupons, which also are used for the purchase of canning sugar, will be increased by 10 for returning servicemen applying for ration books between October 31 and December 31. This will entitle the ration book holder to five pounds of sugar, in addition to his regular supply.

Q.—Will I be able to buy a double-breasted suit this fall?

A.—Double-breasted suits may now be ordered, if you wish to purchase that particular type. Production of men's suits in Canada this year is expected to be approximately five per cent. higher than in 1944. Over one-third of the suits are, however, being reserved for sale to demobilized servicemen.

Q.—Is it right for a storekeeper to take out coupons which have not been used having just the valid coupons in the ration books?

A.—No. You should remove and destroy any unused coupons in your ration books.

Q.—My lady friend told me that she had received a booklet from your office which gave her instructions on how to remake a gentleman's suit into a lady's suit. Would it be possible for me to have one of these booklets.

A.—I imagine your lady friend was referring to "Miracles of Make-Do". I have mailed out a copy to you. This book gives many suggestions on re-making of clothing.

Please send your questions or your request for the pamphlets "Consumers' News" or the Blue Book in which you keep track of your clothing prices, mentioning the name of this paper to the nearest Wartime Prices and Trade Board office in your province.

Colder Winters

Government Astronomer Says Sun Spots Are Affecting The Weather

Weather experts at the Dominion experimental farm took a long look at their maps and charts and then agreed more or less that this winter will be cold—colder at least than last. Dr. R. S. DeLury, government astronomer, blames it on sun spots. While emphasizing that nothing was ever certain about the weather, he theorized that increased cloudiness induced by sun spots should mean increasingly cold winters for the next four or five years until solar disturbances enter a new phase.

Answer To Last Week's Puzzle

CWAC VISITS DENMARK—

The first Canadian servicewoman to visit Denmark since its liberation, is CQMS Camilla Carlson, of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, who recently flew from her station in Holland for a reunion with her family in Copenhagen. It was the first time Camilla had seen her family in 14 years. In 1931, Camilla, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. E. Boyer of Port Alberni, B.C., left Denmark to live at Victoria, B.C. During the five years of German occupation in Denmark, the only correspondence between Camilla and her family was through the Red Cross. Twenty-five words could be sent each month. A great deal of this correspondence never reached its destination. Five months ago, the first regular correspondence began to sift through, and Camilla applied to Canadian Army authorities for compassionate leave to visit her mother. This was granted. The meeting was a dramatic one, and the fourteen days were spent in visiting relatives and renewing old acquaintances. On her return to Holland, Camilla told her barrack friends that she found food in Denmark to be surprisingly good and abundant, but that traces of the suffering inflicted by the German occupation were still in evidence. Copenhagen is still

NORTHWEST STAGING ROUTE TO BE TAKEN OVER BY CANADA LIKELY BY END OF THE MONTH

OTTAWA.—A meeting will be held between Canadian and United States air force representatives to implement the taking over by Canada of installations of the United States Army and U.S. air force on the Edmonton-to-Alaska aerial highway known as the northwest staging route, Air Minister Gibson announced.

The R.C.A.F. did not intend to assume the operation and maintenance of the complete installations on the route, but certain of them, the minister said in a statement. The U.S. air force was anxious to turn over its installations to Canada as quickly as possible and it was possible the conference would recommend the date by which the United States would withdraw from the northwest staging route likely about the end of this month.

Attending the Ottawa meeting will be Air Vice Marshal W. A. Curtis, C.B.E., D.S.C., who will preside, and Air Vice-Marshal T. A. Lawrence, C.B., air officer commanding the northwest air command.

Brig.-Gen. Dale V. Gaffney, commanding general Alaskan division, U.S. army air forces, air transport corps, will be the chief U.S. representative.

EDMONTON.—Brig.-Gen. Dale V. Gaffney said most activities in connection with the U.S.A.A.F. air transport command in the northwest will soon be shifted to the base at Great Falls.

General Gaffney said the large C-54 transports have already been transferred and all major maintenance work will be done at that centre in the future. In addition the Edmonton base will soon cease to be the major "port of embarkation" for troops leaving the division for demobilization.

Gradual transfer of functions from Edmonton to Great Falls is in line with the recent announcement from Ottawa that the Royal Canadian Air Force will take over operation of the northwest staging routes completely June 1, 1946.

The Canadian army will take over operation of the Alaska highway on Canadian soil April 1, 1946.

A DARING ATTEMPT

Made By Australians And Britons To Destroy Jap Air Base In Singapore.—Eight Australians and two Britons attempted to blow up the Japanese southern fleet in Singapore harbor early in 1944 but were captured before they could carry out their mission and executed. Japanese documents captured in Singapore disclosed.

The daring attempt was related by the Australian news and information bureau.

The men were captured in a junk 10 miles from their target, court-martialed at Singapore on charges of espionage and sentenced to death by beheading.

The Japanese high commissioner approved the sentence but added a rider that the behavior of the men was "an inspiration of bravery to the already gallant Nippon army."

Names of the men involved have not been disclosed, but it is known that the party was led by Lt.-Col. Ivan Lyons of the Gordon Highlanders, who had been transferred from the British to the Australian army.

UNITED STATES IN FAVOR OF SCUTTLING THE REMAINDER OF THE GERMAN SUBMARINE FLEET

WASHINGTON.—The United States favors scuttling the remainder of Germany's submarine fleet but is willing to divide the remnants of the Nazi surface fleet among the Big Three, it was learned here.

Britain and the United States, however, are not particularly interested in keeping German surface ships and probably will use their share to meet claims from France and other nations. Russia is certain to keep her share to build up her Baltic fleet.

Germany had slightly more than 100 U-boats left at war's end.

Reports that the Allies plan to scuttle the entire German fleet have brought strong protests from France. But it can be authoritatively stated that this country has not agreed to such a plan and will support French claims to a share of the German navy.

It was pointed out that this country, far from wanting additional fleet units, is now putting away many of its own on a standby basis. Britain also is in no need of additional tonnage.

It was assumed that France and possibly The Netherlands, Belgium and Norway would present claims which would take care of the British

FREEDOM OF PRESS

Flow Of News Vital To Reconstruction Says Clement Attlee

LONDON.—Prime Minister Clement Attlee declared that "a free flow of news about the world" is an essential to post-war international co-operation.

Addressing a meeting of the newspaper society, Attlee paid tribute to the role of a free press during the war.

"In this country," he said, "have long been committed to a belief in the freedom of the press and the liberty to comment. We shall remain so."

He declared that in the achievement of rehabilitation and reconstruction "nothing is, I am convinced, more essential than that there shall be a free flow of news about the world."

It is to independent reporting of events by men and women trained in the work of informing the public that the ordinary people of all nations look chiefly for their understanding of each other," he said.

"For our part we hope that journalists from other countries will come to our country in increasing numbers to observe, to comment and to report back to their own people on our way of life and the manner in which we are dealing with our affairs."

He praised the role of the British press "which has played so worthy a part in British life and which sets a high standard of national service and responsibility."

NO CHANGE SEEN

Higher Postal Rate Likely To Continue For Some Time

OTTAWA.—Prospects are anything but bright that the one cent war tax imposed on all letters mailed in Canada after April 1, 1945, will be removed within the near future.

The one cent tax raised the postage rate for ordinary letters to four cents for the first ounce and the air letter rate to seven cents. Post and rates were raised one cent, too. No mention was made of the postage war tax in the recent budget speech of Finance Minister J. L. Bledsoe. When questioned about it, he said the tax would continue. He would give no indication of when it will be removed. Postmaster General Ernest Bertrand said he expected it will continue "for some time."

FORECASTS HEALTH PLAN

WINNIPEG.—A plan of national health insurance in Canada within two years was predicted here by Hon. Ivan Schuit, Manitoba minister of health. Speaking at the 24th annual convention of the Manitoba Hospital Association, he said the plan would insure general medical care of all people, irrespective of their financial capabilities. It would also, provide a visiting nursing service.

ALL MAY COMPETE

OTTAWA.—Canadian playwrights will have the opportunity again this year of competing for the $100 prize in the Ottawa drama league workshop contest for Canadian-written one act plays, it was announced. Rules for the contest, eighth in succession, may be obtained from Edwin P. Nunn (452 Brennan Ave.) Ottawa.

MERCY FUND

To Provide Protection For People In Car Accidents

WINNIPEG.—Manitoba's "mercy fund" designed to provide protection for people hurt in traffic accidents will become effective Dec. 31, Attorney-General J. O. McLennan announced.

The fund, officially known as the unsatisfied judgment fund, is part of a new highway traffic act passed at the last session of the legislature. It will be built up from a yearly one dollar fee contributed by all motor drivers until it reaches $175,000. It must thereafter be maintained up to $175,000, with a minimum of $100,000.

"The whole purpose of the act is to protect the public against irresponsible drivers," said Mr. McLennan. He believed a greater measure of safety would result.

Drivers will pay the $1 fee at the time regular motor licences are purchased.

The fund will provide protection against motorists, held responsible for accidents, who are without public liability insurance and without other assets to meet a judgment.

When a judgment is obtained and it is found collection is impossible, an application may be made to the court for payment out of the unsatisfied judgment fund, administered by the provincial treasurer.

If the plaintiff's application is accepted, he may collect up to $5,000, excluding costs.

PRICE EXPLAINED

Variations In Net Returns For Feed And Maltling Barley

OTTAWA.—Western farmers receive the same price for feed barley as for malting barley, but there are variations in the net returns because of dockage, Trade and Commerce Minister J. A. MacKinnon informed the House of Commons in a return for E. G. McMillan, (C.C.F., Assiniboia).

"All grades of barley are currently trading at the ceiling price of 94 1/2 cents per bushel, basis in store Port William-Port Arthur," he said.

The 20 per cent per bushel guaranteed advance equalization payment is made on all barley delivered and sold within the regulations since July 31, 1945.

Maltling barley does not necessarily have to be cleaned at Winnipeg before being sold. If the official grade shows there is dockage to be removed, so that it may qualify for the grade given, then the dockage is taken into account when settlement is made for the barley.

For instance, if there were 1,000 bushels in the car, and the inspection certificate showed three per cent dockage, then the seller would only receive settlement for 970 bushels. He would be charged for the cost of removing the dockage and given the value of the dockage removed."

CHANGE SUGGESTED

Title Of King George Should Mention Dominions Says M.P.

OTTAWA.—Eugene Marquis, Liberal, Kamouraska, wants the title of King George VI changed to make it clear that he is separately king of the separate sections of the British Commonwealth.

The title Mr. Marquis wants the King to assume is to add to the present title, "George VI, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, Ireland, and the British Dominions Beyond the Seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India," also the following words: "King of Canada, of Australia, of New Zealand, of South Africa and of the Irish Free State."

Mr. Marquis has put a resolution to that effect on the commons order paper. It reads that the king's present royal style and titles do not sufficiently emphasize the constitutional position and sovereignty of Canada, and of the other dominions.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN

Reason Workers Give For Quitting Atomic Bomb Project

WASHINGTON.—Major-Gen. Leslie R. Groves said hundreds of workers, key men and scientists are quitting the atomic bomb project because of uncertainty over the future of their jobs.

Questioned about a report to this effect, Gen. Groves, in overall charge of the atomic bomb project, told a reporter he has lost some of his best men, both at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Hanford, Wash., as well as at Los Alamos, N.M. He said field representatives report that in numerous instances departing workers list "uncertainty of the future" as a primary or secondary cause for quitting.

PROPOSAL MADE TO ESTABLISH INTERNATIONAL OFFICE TO AID IN PREVENTING USE OF CARTELS

OTTAWA.—Establishment of an international office to assist in preventing undesirable cartel conditions is proposed in a report by F. A. McGregor, commissioner of the combines investigation act, tabled in the House of Commons by Justice Minister L. St. Laurent.

Purposes of the office would be to further negotiations among nations, and to assist in the establishing of accepted principles for the control of cartels through discussions and compromise. It would work in close association with the economic and social council of the United Nations. Seven other main recommendations are contained in the report.

These are:

There is need for close and continuous scrutiny of restrictive agreements based on patents.

Official government records should be set up which would show from time to time any significant change in the degree of financial control which corporations outside Canada exercise over individual domestic companies.

There should be more adequate provisions for the initiation of inquiries by the combines investigation commission into restraint of trade and unfair trade practices.

Steps should be taken to build up an effective organization under the combines investigation act to maintain much more comprehensive scrutiny of restrictive practices and developments than attempted in the past.

Public policy should be carried forward in a number of directions to deal effectively with the varied conditions of industrial control.

Full utilization of Canadian legislative powers should be made with respect to criminal law—including investigation—publicity and prosecution under the combines investigation act.

Representations should be made to other countries, the nationals of which are found in investigation to be engaged in restrictive practices which prejudice the Canadian public; and effective measures of international collaboration should be taken to check the abuses of cartelization.

The report was prepared after a group headed by Mr. McGregor spent more than a year studying the nature and effects of international cartels and related types of trade combinations from a Canadian viewpoint.

It is suggested that the removal of undue restrictions might also be assisted by employing federal powers relating to tariffs, patents, taxation and public regulations as the circumstances require.

Records of official inquiries which have been examined and the information obtained from other sources show that in the pre-war period, there was a definite growth of a network of private international agreements of a restrictive character. In part, such arrangements have been attempts to cope with the situations created by demoralized commodity markets; but they also appear to represent attempts by heavily-capitalized industries to protect themselves against the risks to investment created by rapid technological changes.

Nationalism has played its part in the progress the report points out. The allocation of markets through restrictive agreements made by private interested parties impinges on governments authority over foreign trade and may nullify national trade policies developed to serve wider public interests.

Government policies to encourage either imports or exports may prove ineffective if private barriers to such trade are erected by cartels, it is suggested. The reservation of the domestic market to particular producers might be as effective as a prohibitory tariff in barring imports.

Farm Problems To Be Discussed At Conference

OTTAWA.—The first peacetime conference of Dominion and provincial agricultural experts will be held here in the first week of December.

The annual meeting brings together agricultural experts from all parts of provincial departments with Agricultural Minister Gardiner and federal authorities to discuss the state and prospects of the farming industry throughout the Dominion. Following the conference farmers are advised regarding best types of crops on which to concentrate the following season.

Dr. E. S. Archibald, director of Canadian experimental farms, who returned from the United Nations food conferences in Quebec, told The Canadian Press nothing had developed from the discussions there that would make it desirable for Canada to shift from its traditional farm products such as wheat, coarse grain, pork products, beef products, cheese, butter, poultry, eggs, fruits and vegetables.

It has been the custom at these annual meetings in Ottawa to forecast the best crops to emphasize. In the matter of wheat, the farmers followed the lead given by the meeting last year and sowed approximately the same amount of land to this grain as in 1944. They increased acreage under oats and barley but not to the extent agricultural authorities had hoped. This fact, say officials, coupled with short grain crops all around, means there will be a distinct shortage of coarse grains to feed the livestock this winter.

SHIPS ALLOCATED

Six Will Carry Australian Troops Home From Southwest Pacific

SYDNEY, Australia.—Repatriation of Australian servicemen from the islands of the southwest Pacific has been accelerated by the allocation to Australia of six Australian victory ships as troop transports.

The ships were provided as a result of representations by the commonwealth government to the Allied shipping pool controlled from London and Washington. As a result, it is expected that most Australian troops in the islands will be home by next February or March instead of next June.

Almost daily the streets of Australian cities are deluged with torn paper cascaded from office buildings as the citizens welcome homecoming soldiers and airmen. The first to arrive were prisoners of war returning from Japanese prison camps. Later came long-service troops pouring into the major cities to be demobilized.

HOUSE WARMING PARTY

Last Friday evening members of the Rebekah lodge gave Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boulton a house warming surprise party at their new home overlooking seventh street.

Contests and games provided a very enjoyable social evening. Bingo was played as well as Hum-A-Tune which was won by Mrs. Jack Richards and a guessing contest won by Mrs. Adam Wilson. A luncheon was served following which the honored couple were presented with a set of beautiful pictures. The presentation was made by Mrs. Jack Nash on behalf of the Rebekahs and was responded to by Mrs. Boulton.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

SHOULD FOLLOW COUNCIL'S LEAD

Within the next few weeks merchants will see town workmen busy installing eight or more strings of colored lights across main street and also set up Christmas trees at various points on both sides of the street. The effect should be in keeping with the festive season which is so fast approaching.

It is to be hoped that all merchants will take a lead from the council and make their store windows a blaze of colored lights in various designs and thus make main street take on a truly Christmas spirit.

Only a few local stores go all out to decorate their premises and win the admiration of townspeople who like to see aggressiveness among their merchants. Others simply keep up the old routine of turning off their shop lights at closing time giving little if any thought to attracting shoppers who spend several evenings during the Christmas shopping season to window shop. Those with blackened premises lose possible business by hiding their Christmas goods in darkness.

A well decorated main street will not only attract local shoppers, but also shoppers from farther afield. Let us have light this Christmas season, light reflecting every color of the rainbow.

GIVE CHILDREN A PLAY ZONE

Now that winter is here and heavy snow covers the ground it is not to be expected that parents will allow their children, especially the smaller ones, to wander far afield.

On the east end of Fourth street youngsters from Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth streets have been having the time of their young lives sleighing down the hill. There are roadways north, east and west of this hill, so that there is no real excuse why motorists should have reason to use it.

The suggestion is put forth for the council to declare this zone a play zone for children and warn all motorists to drive with care when in this area. Police interference only makes the children take their sleighs to more dangerous places where traffic is much heavier than it is on this particular part of Fourth street. Should play zones be designated in certain parts of town children would be free to play without interference from any one and a lessened danger of cars causing possible accidents since all drivers would be given ample warning of play zones ahead.

THE SKATING RINK

Coleman Community Sports Association has undertaken the task of trying to create interest of the citizens in moving the skating arena from its present location near the CPR tracks and in the path of dust and smoke of the International tippie and coke ovens to a new site, preferably in Flum-evelt Park near the new curling arena.

The rink is badly in need of repair and the Association officials are of the opinion that instead of spending hundreds of dollars in repairs the money could be better spent in helping to move the arena and aid in enlarging it so that it would serve the purpose of a community centre twelve months in the year.

Since experience has taught us that it is next to impossible to get citizens to sit down and pen their ideas on paper it would help matters if the Association went to work and got an architect's drawing to show citizens what kind of a building they had in mind, what sports, etc., the building would accommodate, its approximate cost, how it is anticipated to raise the money with which to first demolish the present building and build a new structure.

The question of finance is one that everyone is interested in. The monthly fee at present assessed every wage earner in town is barely sufficient for administration of the various sports which the Association seeks to foster.

EFFICIENCY PLUS

For the past two years this town has consistently kept after the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for improved reception conditions. Every effort has failed, the CBC being a past master in giving various reasons why this and that are impossible of fulfillment.

However it is not necessary for any town or city to request the CBC's tax collecting department to send its representative to visit them. There always appears to be plenty of manpower available for this particular branch of the CBC. The CBC licensing department is on a par with the income tax department—efficiency plus.

Coleman welcomed home another of its returned soldiers on Friday afternoon when Pte. William Anderson arrived back after several years overseas. Bill left Britain on the Destroyer Crescent which came to Canada via the Panama Canal and docked at Esquimalt.

While based in Britain he married a Miss Joyce Cooper, of Cambridge. They now have a husky youngster named Robert George. He expects to have them with him this coming summer.

Bill saw action in France, Holland and Belgium and advanced as far as the Rhine.

He plans on leaving next Tuesday for Vancouver, where he will secure his discharge.

The need of a recreational centre as suggested in last week's Journal emphasizes the desire of the Coleman Sports Association to remove the skating arena from its present site.

Some suggested facilities besides provision for skating and hockey should include:

1. A gymnasium.
2. A lunch counter.
3. A central heating plant.
4. Indoor lavatory facilities.
5. A public address system.
6. A storeroom for equipment.

Clubs and citizens interested in the proposal are urged to suggest their ideas to the Sports Association or to The Journal.

Described as a singing-dancing drama of show people, the new picture features such prominent film notables as Frances Dee, Donald Cook, Eve Arden, Thomas Gomez and others.

The story, said to be tailored to exploit the unusual talents of its youthful stars, deals with the career of an ambitious youngster who happens to be the son of a famous musical comedy star

An Appeal to Coleman Citizens

United Polish Relief Fund, registered under the War Charities Act, with headquarters in Toronto, has made an appeal to all Polish organizations throughout Canada to collect $250,000 to set up Mobile Hospitals for Poland. The drive commenced on November 11th and will continue till December 31st, 1945.

In Coleman the Polish Society of Brotherly Aid and Polish Alliance of Poland and its Allies have organized a united committee which has the authority to act on behalf of the United Polish Relief Fund during the campaign.

In Poland, ruined by the Nazis, many diseases are rampant, killing thousands of people monthly. Each month sees 10,000 die of tuberculosis, 35,000 of typhus, and many thousands of other diseases.

Therefore, we, as an organized committee of the above mentioned organizations, appeal to Coleman citizens for small donations to aid in setting up these mobile hospitals. All donations will be accepted and receipts issued by

Bank President Predicts Bright Canadian Future

Despite the toll of war, the Canadian people stand on the threshold of peace with $6,763 millions more money than they ever had before. This has piled up since 1939—$1,131,000,000 representing an increase in savings deposits in the chartered banks, $241,500,000 in war savings certificates, $4,608,100,000 in individual savings invested in Victory bonds, and $783,000,000 of extra cash lying in men's pockets, women's purses and the tills of business.

This great volume of money, Mr. Wedd said, carries with it definite risks and dangers, as well as definite advantage, but "if Canadians will look at their savings, realize their strength, and move with confidence, their future prosperity upon a sound and ordered basis lies in their own hands." Without their national common sense, he added, Canadians could impoverish themselves in a disastrous inflationary spiral.

Mr. Wedd, vice-president and general manager of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, who is retiring after two years as president of The Canadian Bankers' Association, pledged the banks through their branches across the country "to furnish sympathetic counsel and understanding advice," to all returning men and women who seek it. Every branch manager is eager to aid in the rehabilitation of Canada's returning soldiers, sailors and airmen in civilian occupations and peaceful civil life. As for the banks, he said, "we shall see to it that none of our permanent employees lose through having given of themselves to their country's service."

Mayor Aboussafy brought up the subject of decorating main street for the Christmas season. He suggested that various strings of colored lights be strung across the street and that evergreens be brought down from the hills and used to decorate both sides of the street. His suggestion met with immediate favor, the three Scots on the council immediately decreeing that the decorations remain during "Hogmanay." The Works & Property committee was given the job of decorating the street.

During the war years Coleman lost its night operator at the local CPR depot. The matter was brought up for discussion and it was agreed that council endeavor to prevail upon CPR officials the need of a night operator capable of sending and receiving wires in the Coleman depot. It is understood that the union is also lending its support in having a night operator placed here.

beautified as a war memorial to the men of the war just concluded. He listed three suggestions which Coleman might follow. They were: 1, beautify the town; 2, place of recreation for our youth; 3, a library.

Six representatives of different branches of His Majesty's service and led by W. H. Garner marched down the aisle carrying flags of several Allied Nations. They stopped in front of the bronze plaque where Mr. Garner placed a wreath.

Bugler James Lowe played the "Last Post," followed by two minutes silence, and then played "Reveille."

Mr. Garner then read aloud the names of those who fell in the First Great War and then those who had fallen in the war of 1939-45, the latter including W. Harrison, G. Kroesing, L. Jankulak, J. Morris, J. Rogers, A. McDonald, T. Brennan, J. W. MacQuarrie and W. Nimcan.

The pipe band then played "The Flowers Of The Forest."

The prayer, Scripture reading and hymns were led by Rev. G. A. Ketyls, the benediction was given by Rev. W. A. Brown and the service came to a close with the singing of "God Save The King."

Theatre Notes

"GUNG HO"

What does it mean? It means more than a phrase, more than a slogan. It is a spirit of co-operation that inspired a select group of United States Marines to achieve the impossible by sneaking into the very heart of the Jap-infested South Pacific and completing the first offensive action of American forces against Japan.

It was the raid attack against Makin Island in the Gilbert Group on August 17, 1942, when two hundred and ten men of the Second Marine Raider Battalion—"Carlson's Raiders"—killed all but two of the Jap defending force, and wiped out all installations on the island.

Lieutenant Colonel Evans F. Carlson, U.S.M.C., conceived and commanded the raid, and later continued to reap added glories with his Raiders in the bloody battles on Guadalcanal Island. To the spirit of "Gung Ho!" Lieut. Col. Carlson largely attributes his success in battle with minor casualties. He discovered the "Gung Ho!" spirit in China, while he was attache to the Chinese Eighth Route Army as an observer. It was one of the greatest spirits of co-operation that Lieut. Col. Carlson had never found existent in any army before, with all fighting men, both officers and enlisted men together, working in harmony—"Gung" meaning "work," and "Ho" meaning "harmony."

"Gung Ho!" will come to Cole's theatre on Saturday and Monday.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

NOVEMBER 18

THE OUTREACH OF THE CHURCH

Memory Selection: And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation. Mark 16:15.

Lesson: Acts 11: 19-30; 12:24; 13: 4; Ephesians 4: 11-16.

Devotional Reading: I Thessalonians 5:12-23.

The Text Explained With Comments

The Early Jewish Christian Church Shares Its Faith With Gentiles, Acts 11:21-26. "The persecution had turned out to be a missionary society unconsciously organized by the Jews of the new faith," for wherever the persecuted followers of Christ went, they told the story of the gospel, yet to Jews only. In Antioch, however, there was a new departure. Some of the Christians, converts from Cyprus and Cyrene (the capes of Libya, west of Egypt), being themselves Grecian Jews, had fewer scruples about mingling with Gentiles than had the Jews of Palestine, and they preached the good news to the Greeks as well as to the Jews at Antioch. The result was that many believed and turned to the Lord. It was a tremendous innovation, that preaching to Gentiles, and by reason of its influence upon later events, Antioch has been called the second birthplace of Christianity.

Report of the preaching to Gentiles could not be pleasing to the church at Jerusalem. But a revolutionary step had to be investigated. Barnabas, a good man, full of the Holy Spirit, was sent to Antioch, and when he arrived and saw the genuineness of the Gentiles' faith he rejoiced and exhorted them to remain steadfast. "There was more in Barnabas than hospitality to new men; there was also a hospitality to new ideas."

Through the efforts of Barnabas the church at Jerusalem had accepted Paul, their arch persecutor, as a brother after his conversion, but Paul nevertheless had been forced to flee and find an asylum in Tarsus, his home town. Barnabas now saw the need of a helper in the church at Antioch, and he knew that Paul was just the man for the place. Accordingly, he went to Tarsus and brought Paul back with him to Antioch, and there for a whole year they worked together in the church and gained a large number of converts. Thus Barnabas was the means of starting Paul on his marvelous career of usefulness.

And the disciples were called Christians first at Antioch. Before this they were called "those of the Way." They called themselves learners, disciples, saints, the faithful, believers, brethren, sons of our Father. The people of Corinth labeled them Christians—because they saw in them the Christ, we like to think—though many scholars think the name was given in derision.

HIS ALLOTMENT

Just before the battle started the commanding officer shouted:

"The enemy is coming men, but we're outnumbered four to one, so do your stuff."

A lean mountaineer began to blaze away, but in about five minutes stopped, leaned his rifle against a rock and leisurely leaned back.

"What's the matter?" shouted the officer.

"Well, I got my four," was the reply.

Highway Disasters

Speed Should Be Kept Down Until New Tires Are Available

Traffic fatalities reached the grim total of 210 on the first Labor Day week-end after four years of war, according to figures compiled the next day by a press association. This figure doubtless will be much higher when all reports are in.

Such signs and portents clearly show that death will stalk our highways in the months to come. We must turn to the continuous preaching and practice of safety measures to keep down this ghastly and unnecessary toll of human life and limb.

It will be months before new cars and new tires can replace the ancient vehicles and equipment now in use. It will take even longer to "build safety into the highways."

Meanwhile, we must be careful. Just what are the factors which are making our post-war highways more dangerous than ever before? Reaction from restraint usually takes some violent form. With the gas rationing lifted, many drivers who have been "creeping along" at 35 miles per hour want to double that speed immediately without considering the condition of their cars and tires.

"Whoopie! Fill 'er up and let's go!" Stated bluntly, the present day automobiles—all of them at least five years old, and their patched, worn, retreaded tires simply can't take it the same as when they were new. Result—disaster! — Road Builders News.

Public Grants

To Military Leaders In Britain To Be Curtailed

The tradition of making grants to victorious military leaders goes back to the days of the Roman triumph and before. It has been common in many countries and civilizations.

In England the custom seems to have begun in a large way with Winston Churchill's illustrious ancestor, the first Duke of Marlborough, who after his victorious campaigns in Europe was granted $250,000 a year for life, plus Blenheim Palace built at public expense for about $1,000,000.

The Duke of Wellington was given a castle and more than $3,000,000. Lord Nelson's descendants received a perpetual annuity of about $25,000 a year.

This time, says Mr. Attlee, there will be no cash on the line. Such a policy, he declared, "is not in accordance with the spirit of the times or the character of the war."

And he declared, "This decision is not to be construed as showing a lack of appreciation for the magnificent services rendered by our military leaders, who have never been surpassed in our military history."—London Free Press.

Good Manners Win

But At Expense Of Your Teeth Says Dental Surgeon

The Chatham Daily News says: If we would just forget that we are perfect ladies and gentlemen, and crunch our food loudly and with vigor at our dining tables, our teeth would last longer and give less woe while we have them. This from a prominent dental surgeon. The doctor explains that there is nothing for the teeth quite so good as bone-picking, toast-crunching, celery-cracking and all the various forms of mastication upon which Etiquette with a capital "E" frowns. Which will win, good teeth or fine manners? It will be a brave man or woman who dares say the former.

BOUNTY OF NATURE

"Men praise the bounty of Nature, but it is much safer to rely on her justice, which as rarely fails to reward our care as to revenge our neglect. We work badly too much ground instead of cultivating well a little."—Nicholas Biddle in an address to the Philadelphia Society for Promoting Agriculture in 1809.

Farm Property

Many Farm Buildings Are Badly In Need Of Paint

"Don't put it off, put it on," might well be the slogan of many a farmer in regard to paint, for there can be no doubt that a great many farm buildings in Canada are sadly in need of paint.

There are, actually, very few farmers who do not realize the protection which paint gives against decay, rot, rust, disease-germs, lice and mites. The trouble is that most of them have been so busy during the last few years that they just haven't found time to maintain their property in the best way possible. Producing record crops with an unparalleled shortage of help hasn't left much spare time for painting.

Now, however, much of the paint work can't be put off any longer without serious damage to thousands of farm buildings in Canada. Prices are stronger and yields have been generally good in the last few years, but property decay can eat up a lot of the profit unless it is checked. There is no better way to invest part of the increased earnings than to spend it in protecting investments in the form of farm buildings and equipment of all kinds.

Every tractor operator knows that continued operation of the motor depends on that thin film of oil between the piston and the cylinder wall. He knows that when the oil is worn out, the cylinder and piston will be quickly and surely damaged, perhaps beyond repair.

Paint is to the house or barn what oil is to the motor. The thin film of paint reduces the wear that comes from exposure to sun, wind, dust, rain, snow, heat and cold. A building without that protective film will not be destroyed as quickly as an oil-starved motor, but the damage will be just as sure and just as costly even if it does take longer.

Something Really New

British Scientists Have Method For Producing Colored

Something new in the fur world—orange or sky blue rat hides striped with white—has emerged from the research of Dr. Alexander Haddon and K. M. Rudall, British scientists.

In the Imperial Chemical Industries magazine Excavator, the pair announced that while testing properties of a substance derived from the chemical alloxazine they learned how to make white rats change color. The turncoat effect can be produced by injection or by mixing the chemical into rat food.

This week's ration fashion calls for an expenditure of two coupons and sixteen tokens. The sixteen tokens are equivalent to two coupons, so that full use is made of the four coupons available each week in a family of four.

If Sunday brings a dinner guest, the rolled shoulder of lamb could be substituted with your favorite dressing and a tempting brown gravy. The left-overs will provide the wherewithal for the lamb pie suggested for Tuesday's dinner. A pound of hamburger stretched with soft bread crumbs will make a meat loaf which can be served hot on Monday and sliced cold for Tuesday's luncheon.

either for the sandwiches packed off to school or work, or for the meal at home along with a crisp salad. You may find you have some tubs to spare from the roast or loaf which can be added to a spaghetti dish for Wednesday's lunch when sausages will be used for dinner. Braised veal cutlets for Thursday will assure the man of the house that, although rationed, meat can still hold a prominent place on the dinner plate. Fish appears on the Friday menu. For Saturday liver will provide a nutritious meal, leaving you with four tokens to devote to half a pound of bacon, or to carry over as a contribution to the next week's roast.

Winged Rockets

Able To Travel From New York To London In Less Than An Hour

Winged rockets equipped with a special 100-lb booster mechanism will be able to travel from New York to London in less than an hour, if current experiments develop successfully, W. G. A. Perring told the Royal Aeronautical Society in London.

The British aeronautics expert said rocket ranges of 1,500 to 3,000 miles, "now appear to be possible."

"Flight at over 8,000 miles an hour is contemplated," he said.

Addition of wings to rockets has raised the cruising ranges from about 150 to 350 miles, Mr. Perring reported. "Even more striking," he added, is the effect of boosters which the Germans were developing after early rocket failures.

"However, I do not want to minimize the difficulties of this problem," he said. "As yet practically nothing is known about control at these speeds, nor of difficulties that will be encountered in passing through the speed of sound."

Churchill's Ambition

Was To Play Kettledrum Or Be Conductor Of Orchestra

Winston Churchill confessed his one untainted ambition—he wants to play a kettledrum.

Back at his old school at Harrow for a songfest with the boys, Britain's wartime Prime Minister said:

"As a youth, I aspired to play the kettledrum, but I was not musically gifted. So I gave up that ambition and transferred my aspiration to another part of the school orchestra. I wanted to be conductor."

He didn't conduct at Harrow, but as he explained:

"Eventually, however, after a great deal of perseverance, I rose to be conductor of quite a considerable band. It was a very large band and played very strange formidable instruments. The roar and thunder of its music resounded throughout the school. We played all sorts of tunes and ended up the concert with 'Rule Britannia' and 'God Save The King.'"

A reflected glow from the city lights in the sky reached down to the water's edge and pushed the blackness away from the beach. About thirty yards out, where the night and the water met, the strong, white arms of a swimmer slipped in and out of sight. The arms stopped for a moment, the swimmer took water, black eyes keenly surveyed the deserted beach—the shadows near the warehouse.

The face was cruel. Knife-like, with long, lean jaw-bones thrusting forward, like the mouth of a salmon. The eyes were deep black, with an appearance of reflection in their depths from the reflection of the light.

Bronson stared at the beach a moment longer, then he resumed his powerful crawl, and the grinning, white, nude body began to grow out of the water. He moved excitedly. Couldn't be swim, eh? No escaping prisoner could ever escape the currents and the tide in the Bay. They didn't know Bronson.

He went directly to a shed beside the wooden warehouse. He found the bundle of clothes. His muscular body began to grow out of the water. He moved excitedly. Couldn't be swim, eh? No escaping prisoner could ever escape the currents and the tide in the Bay. They didn't know Bronson.

When he reached it, he turned and thumbed his nose at the far away black shape of the Island, his white teeth showing in silent laughter. Trying to hold him, Bronson, on an island! A typical dumb cop's trick. Everything had worked out perfectly. Keeling had left the clothes where Bronson had told him to. Then, timing his break, Bronson had roused the guards on the north side of the Island, where he had told Keeling to be waiting offshore in the darkness. When he had swum away from the other side of the Island, he had heard the noise of the sirens, the shouts of the guards as the searchlights picked up Keeling in the rowboat. He had known that Keeling would be stupid enough to try to flee and that the machine guns would get him. His body would sink—the guards would think they got him, Bronson. Beautiful.

Meanwhile, thought Bronson, he had a lot of work to catch up on. There was Dillon—he had been getting pretty cocky even before Bronson had got hooked for shooting that cop. And he had practically taken over all the black market gasoline since Bronson had been jugged. Stepped right into Bronson's shoes. Bronson patted the gun in his pocket again. Dillon would have to come down a peg.

Dillon sat behind a big desk—Bronson's desk and watched him coming from behind a cloud of cigar smoke. His—Bronson's—cigars. Bronson felt his temples begin to pound with anger.

"Wouldn't that be just your kind of thing?" "Maybe that would be o.k. Maybe not. We don't want you to think you're getting a bad deal, but you're pretty hot right now. The way I'm figuring it, you could go away for a while. Take a little rest." He smiled.

Bronson was so mad he forgot to be careful. He stood up, placing his hand on the desk. That young punk!

"Wouldn't that be just your kind of thing?" "Maybe that would be o.k. Maybe not. We don't want you to think you're getting a bad deal, but you're pretty hot right now. The way I'm figuring it, you could go away for a while. Take a little rest." He smiled.

From a long way off, across that wide desk, Dillon smiled again. "Been nice knowing you, Bronson." He couldn't believe it. Not him, Bronson! He was boss of this outfit. He refused to believe it while they took him downstairs into the big, black car—one of his cars—and began to drive out the Beach Road, through the fog.

He talked then, rapidly, the sweat pouring from his face and chest, running icily down his chest, where his heart thudded, frantically. Double-breasted! Double-breasted!

They agreed with him, but they kept driving out the fog and the one-eyed fellow on the left began to unwrap the sawed-off shotgun.

Then they were standing at the edge of the road, and he was pleading, talking hysterically, throwing them off-guard, while they made ready. The next instant he had smashed the fat man in the stomach, and plunged between the other two toward the Bay. There were curses and shouts, but they couldn't see clearly in the fog and darkness. Shots. Something red stabbed him in the shoulder but he didn't feel the hurt. And then the cool waters were closing around him and he felt safe.

He swam straight out for a hundred yards; then he removed his clothes—nearly drowning in the effort. Free, finally, his teeth drew back in a snarl. He'd come through again—he always came through. As he swam, his mind busily began to sketch plans, continents in Chicago—a few he could trust.

He swam what he thought was parallel with the coast, but he didn't know. He was sure he didn't come back in where they'd be waiting. Dirty—double-breasted rats!

He was weak, near the end of his rope, when he finally came into shore. He had a hard time fighting through the surf, scrambling up the shifting, rocky bottom toward the beach. Then through the mist, he saw the black figure against the sky above him. And he was cursing, running, trying to get back into the water. After that there was the shriek of the siren, the cruel brilliance of the Island searchlights upon him, the tear of the first few machine-gun bullets, and nothing.

THE CANADIAN ARMY

Ross Munro Tells The Story Of Its War Record In His New Book

The Dieppe raid was scheduled to take place six weeks before it did, and when bad weather forced its postponement, troops already embarked for France broke down and cried. Ross Munro discloses in "Gauntlet to Overlord," the first full account of Canada's Army given to the public.

ROSS MUNRO
in a 130,000-word book just published (by The Macmillan Co. of Canada, Ltd.).

Munro reveals the postponement for the first time in his chapter on the Aug. 19, 1942, Dieppe attack, during which he was on or close to the erupting beaches for eight hours. Men from the 2nd Canadian Division were ready for the raid July 4, but tide and weather conditions had to be right. There were postponements, and July 7 was the last day on which the raid could take place. The heart-breaking news of the cancellation came in mid-morning, and Munro wrote in his diary that he had never been more depressed.

Six weeks later the same troops were sent on the raid, "a sudden decision dictated by the necessities of the North African landing which was being planned at the time and scheduled for early November." In the August raid, Commando troops were assigned the tasks that paratroops were given in July, eliminating the need for such perfect weather conditions.

Munro re-tells the story of the Aug. 19 raid which cost Canada such a heavy toll of lives, and makes a detailed appreciation of its purpose and its influence on the future course of the war. "There seem to have been two purposes," he writes. "The first was linked intimately with the North African landings, which were made in the following November. The second was part of the main Second Front planning, which was being started even at that early date."

The CP war correspondent also writes of the men and the operations he saw at Spiergen, North Africa, Sicily, Italy, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany, as the only reporter who was with the army from "Gauntlet" to "Overlord"—the code names given to the Spitzbergen operation in 1941, and the west front campaign.

Through chapters replete with details and background, which even his many hundred news stories from the front could not produce in full, Munro takes the army from its formative days in southern England to its mighty climax as a partner in the allied victory team in Germany.

The "fundamental reason" for Gen. A. G. L. McNaul's retirement from the Army command at the end of 1943, was conflict between the general and members of the cabinet over the question of splitting the Army. Munro says Gen. McNaul's retirement was concerned with his desire to keep the Army together as an entity for the west front campaign, and his opposition to the dispatch to the Mediterranean of the 1st Canadian Corps.

It was intended originally to bring the 1st Division back from Italy in the fall of 1943, but instead the Canadian force there was increased to corps strength. "The Army commander was at variance with this plan," Munro relates. He opposed it and was overruled. In the fall of 1943, the Army commander, whose health was never very robust, took ill and at Christmas it was announced that he was leaving his army command because of ill-health.

Munro says that Gen. McNaul and the then defence minister, Col. J. L. Balcan, "clashed practically every time they met. The climax came when it was decided to send the 1st Corps to Italy. Then the differences between the two burst wide open."

Referring to rumors, current at the time, that a dispute between McNaul and Field Marshal Montgomery led to the Canadian commander's retirement, Munro says that while it is true the generals never saw eye to eye, "there was no convincing evidence that Montgomery had anything to do with McNaul's retirement."

Munro tells of "subtle criticism" of McNaul which developed out of the conduct of the 2nd Canadian Corps on an exercise eight months before the retirement. Although the Corps was comparatively new and did not have all its equipment, harsh comments on the general's tactics appeared in the official report of the manoeuvre and were distributed to various headquarters.

"General McNaul's prestige was damaged and his standing in the War Office and in Whitehall suffered," writes Munro. "This probably was a contributing factor to his retirement."

Overseas Gum Plan

The Absence Of Wrigley's Gum Puzzles Returned Men

The efforts of certain manufacturers to meet overseas demands during the war resulted in severe short supply in the domestic market, and in the case of Wm. Wrigley Jr. Co., Limited, it's entire stock of certain pre-war quality ingredients was entirely used up long before the war's end. However, Canadian men and women received chewing gum overseas through their Overseas Gum Plan, which was most successfully operated for the folks at home through their retail stores, who forwarded their customers orders to the manufacturer for direct shipment to Canadians serving overseas. Returned service men and women are now looking forward to Wrigley's promise to bring their famous lines of chewing gum back to all Canadian retail store counters just as soon as it is practical to guarantee top quality ingredients and finest flavor in sufficient quantities.
